EXPERIENCE OF MORRILL WILL LONG LINGER

R. B. H. Morrill, president and general manager of the Morrill Silver Mining company, operating the old Silverch mine on Lone mountain, claims to be the champion snow shoveler of the world. Mr. Morrill, accompanied by Al Gonzales, the letter of Los Angeles, put in 14 days in traveling from Los Angeles to Tonopah, and during that time claims to have shoveled fully 100 miles of snow, the average depth of which he says was 4 feet. In addition to that he says they walked fully 50 miles through mud, slush and snow.

During the trip, which was made overland, following a business visit to the mine, Mr. Morrill made use of an ax and 16 horses. He and Mr. Gonzales became lost five times, and on each occasion they were compelled to resort to the use of shovels in order to get their car back into civilization. It took six days to shovel a road from the summit of Westland pass to the toll house, a distance of six miles, remarked Mr. Morrill this morning. "In addition we had the use of two horses. From Deep Springs to Oasis we used four men and two horses, and once the auto disappeared completely from sight, and it is a wonder we were not killed."

Upon the return trip after leaving Big Pine everything went smoothly until Deep Springs was reached, when the auto broke down and Mr. Morrill and Gonzales were compelled to secure assistance. After arriving in Tonopah yesterday afternoon Mr. Morrill secured another car and went on and brought in the broken auto, which has again been brought into commission today. "It is all funny to look back on now," remarked Mr. Morrill, "but believe me, I do not care to undergo another 14 days of similar experience. My next trip to the coast during the winter season will be by train."

HORNSILVER IS DUE FOR GREAT MINING BOOM

Dave Murphy returned from Hornsilver today to spend the weekend in Tonopah. He is now giving his entire attention to the development work on the Rosetta Divide Hornsilver property.

Mr. Murphy announces a big improvement in the Rosetta workings, both in width of ore shoot and gold values. The shaft is down about 15 feet and shows over 6 feet of vein matter, which pans free gold and assays from $25 to $35 a ton.

The Rosetta company has entertained a number of visitors recently and everyone who sees the wonderful showing becomes an immediate and enthusiastic booster.

The Goldsmith Divide, also under Mr. Murphy's management, has just acquired the Henry Ford claim from J. H. Martin, H. Pickle and Sam Barum, for a cash and stock consideration. The Henry Ford claim has some magnificent showings of free gold and the addition of this claim to the Goldsmith Divide estate rounds out a great property for that company.

SCHOOL NOTES

The student body held a meeting in the assembly Friday afternoon. The financial standing of the high school was discussed and the treasurer presented her report as follows: Total assets, $1499.59; total liabilities, $311.55; making a net profit of $1188.04. Of this $1188.04 was in the bank at the beginning of the year, and everything considered, the high school has done exceptionally well this year. It will cost more than this to send the teams to the tournament and the high school will have to raise more money during the next two weeks. After the meeting the Girls' Athletic association held a meeting and decided to give a waffle and coffee sale next Monday night after the first show, for the purpose of raising additional funds.

The standing of all the Tonopah students at the University of Nevada is first, with the standing of the freshmen and sophomores in second.

The sixth grade is studying for a spelling contest to be held in the near future. Some of the pupils have been taken from Miss Heston's room and some from Miss Averill's, and a grade is being taught in the gym by Mrs. Thelma Davis.

THE COURTSHIP OF MILES STANDISH

By Claudia Church.
The play, "The Courtship of Miles Standish," was given Wednesday afternoon by the following members of the B. division of the eighth grade: Claudia Church as Priscilla, Charles Starr John Alden, William Redley, Miles Standish, and Leonard Traynor, the messenger. The players dramatized their parts exceptionally well. Later the class expects to give a play which will include more members. As yet Miss Helene Shavin has not decided just what play the class will enact. This dramatic work is being emphasized in the reading class for expression.

OUTLOOK GOOD FOR INCREASED METAL OUTPUT

Due to the Pittman act establishing a price of $1 per ounce for all silver produced in America and no possibility of the act being repealed during the next five years, has been the means of interesting new capital in the state of Nevada, for the prospecting of a great number of old properties as well as prospects that have good surface showings, writes Herman Ziegler in a recent issue of the San Francisco News Letter. The late war has been a good illustration as to how necessary it is to have silver circulate with gold. Had it not been for the United States having a large stock of silver coined and uncirculated in its treasury to loan to England during the war when China and India were clamoring for it, no one can tell what might have happened; most likely a great revolution. This should be a good lesson for all those who always had faith with the treasury department of the United States that they had too much silver in the country. Even now there are a great many who would like to see the Pittman act repealed. I do not think that any of the senators or congressmen from the west will ever allow such an act to pass. The advocates for repealing the Pittman act don't seem to realize that a large number of silver mines would have to close their doors, curtailing the production of silver as well as gold, as nearly every silver mine has a gold content in its silver ore. Now that it is an agreed fact that the different nations want to get China on its feet again, realizing the great possibilities of that country, one cannot help but see that silver will be the metal to play an important part in the reconstruction. It is therefore not surprising that capital is willing to reopen old properties as well as new ones, and the state of Nevada, in my judgment, offers the best opportunity.

The most wonderful transformation that is going on now in Nevada is on the famous old Comstock, where the old-time mining engineer, Buckley Wells, representing eastern capital, is changing part of the old Comstock into a new one. After acquiring nearly all the principal properties in Gold Hill, known as the Crown Point, Yellow Jacket, Belcher, Confidence, Challenge, Imperial, Kentucky and Alpha, and developing large bodies of rich and low-grade ore justifying the erection of a large milling plant, and Engineer Wells decided to go down to what is known as American Flat, start a long tunnel to connect with all the different properties in Gold Hill, thus enabling him to haul the ore at a small cost to the 2000-ton mill now in course of construction at the new town called New Comstock. This new town called New Comstock will in time take the place of Gold Hill.

The success of this enterprise will mean that mining engineers from all parts of the United States will flock to the Comstock looking for other properties that may be good enough to take hold of. The Brunswick Lode, Silver City and the country around Dayton will likely be the places or renewed mining activity, as all of these places had considerable activity during the great Comstock excitement. Candalaria is another place where new capital has taken hold of properties that were at one time large producers and dividend payers. I refer to the Northern Bell, Holmes mine and Mount Diablo. The Candalaria Mines company has just made arrangements to erect a $300,000 mill to work the large tonnage of medium-grade ore which through improved methods and $1 silver can now be turned into bullion at a profit. The success of this venture will most likely be the means of starting other properties now lying dormant.

There are a number of camps such as Tonopah, the Divide, Manhattan, Goldfield, Pioche and Rochester, all large producers of silver and gold, which thus enrich the world. Gold and silver mining is beginning to attract the attention of men of means. They have found out during the war that if you have a good gold and silver mine you have a product that you can always find a ready market for. There is no over-production. People with means have also found out that legitimate mining is no more of a gamble than any other legitimate business—one can lose in either. The great war has shown that to a great many.

Plenty of amusement will be found tonight at the high school gym when the basketball team from the Stewart Indian school will attempt to scalp the pride team of Tonopah. Admission 50c. F18-11.

AMUSEMENTS

TOM MOORE AT THE BUTLER TODAY

More than any star on the screen today, Tom Moore, who plays the leading role in Charles Kenyon's comedy drama, "Beating the Game," which will be shown at the Butler today, has been closely identified with American types. His versatility is such that his characterizations run all the way from the common street cleaner in "Hold Your Horses" to the literary man about town in "Toby's Row." Between these films Tom Moore has played a policeman in "Officer 666," a fireman in "Made in Heaven," and now in "Beating the Game" he is a reformed crook, the greater part of whose career is that of a politician who earns the nickname of "Honest Tom."

The other attraction on today's bill is Jane and Katherine Lee, known as the Baby Grands, in one of their latest comedies, "The Hicksville Terrors."
